Donato Lanni consults with trainer Bob Baffert at Keeneland

BUYERS PREPPING FOR KEENELAND SALE

By Ian Tapp

Less than two weeks from the opening session of Keeneland's 12-day September yearling sale, bloodstock agent Donato Lanni is in preparation mode.

"You try to get a good couple of days of sleep and a good meal before—it's like getting ready for a hockey game," Lanni quipped. "But, seriously, you have to be ready mentally and physically. You have to be focused and cut any non-horse activities out of your life."

Lanni has a reputation for buying athletes even if the pedigree happens to be unfashionable.

"The catalog page tells you how much of a premium you're going to have to give," he said. "If it's a young mare or a fashionable stallion, that's all premium on top of the individual. I like Books 3, 4, and 5 best because you can find athletes in those books and don't have to give a lot of money. A lot of those horses have just come in from the fields, as opposed to the Book 1 horses that don't have one hair out of place." BH

Lyster family's Ashview Farm bred King's Bishop winner Runhappy

RUNHAPPY GIVES ASHVIEW A LIFT

By Evan Hammonds

The Lyster family's Ashview Farm bred its second grade I winner when Runhappy took the Aug. 29 King's Bishop Stakes (gr. I) at Saratoga Race Course. Farm manager Bryan Lyster, along with brother, Gray, and father, Wayne Lyster III, claimed the mare Bella Jolie for $5,000, bred her to Super Saver, and found success.

Bryan Lyster said Super Saver was the "nicest first-year sire we saw, and his price ($20,000) fit the value of the mare." A vet issue knocked some buyers off Runhappy at Keeneland September, but the yearling still brought $200,000 from Jim McIngvale.

Runhappy's Lookin At Lucky half brother is cataloged in Keeneland September's Book 2, and Bella Jolie (in foal to Cairo Prince) has been nominated for November.

"We knew Runhappy and thought he had a ton of ability, so Super Saver looked good to go back to, but we liked Cairo Prince and he was a quarter of the price," Lyster said.

Ashview also bred and sold multiple champions in Johannesburg. BH

ADW: SHOW ME THE MONEY

By Ron Mitchell

Less revenue often goes to purses from wagers placed through advance deposit wagering services than the same bets placed on track. A study conducted for the Kentucky Horse Racing Commission shows where the money went compared with where it would have gone had those same wagers been placed on track or at other tracks within the state rather than through ADWs.

The numbers crunched by Wilson Shirley track ADW wagers over a five-year period through 2014. For example, of the nearly $165.8 million in ADW wagers in 2014, $3.2 million went to purses, $2.9 million to Kentucky tracks, and $8.9 million to non-Kentucky tracks, and $18.1 million to ADW licensees.

Had that same $165.8 million been wagered within the state and not through ADWs, $14.8 million would have gone to Kentucky purses, $11.8 million to Kentucky tracks, and $5 million to non-Kentucky tracks. Obviously, there is no way of knowing how much ADW handle is attributable to convenience and whether those wagers would otherwise not be placed. (see full charts here) BH

TEXAS RACING DODGES SHUTDOWN?

By Eric Mitchell

The Texas Racing Commission Aug. 31 was said to have received a last-minute three-month reprieve from a legislative board that had threatened to withhold its operating funds. According to the Texas Thoroughbred Horsemen's Partnership, the Texas Legislative Budget Board was expected to authorize funding for salaries, rent, and utilities for only the next three months rather than for the next two years as is typical at the start of a fiscal year.

Racetrack sources, however, said the Senate and House of Representatives had not agreed on the plan. If funding wasn't approved by the end of the day Aug. 31, the lack of oversight by the commission would have prevented Texas racetracks from operating live or simulcast racing Sept. 1.

"While we are pleased with reports that our

Without commission funding, Texas racing and simulcasting will shut down Sept. 1 industry will be open for business tomorrow, this sort of uncertainty is almost as bad as shutting us down now," said Jan Haynes, president of the Texas Thoroughbred Horsemen's Partnership. She said the group's "only crime" is disagreeing with Sen. Jane Nelson and Lieutenant Gov. Dan Patrick. BH

DUBAWI PUSHES FOR EUROPEAN SIRE CROWN

By Clive Webb-Carter

As we head into the final months of the European turf season, Dubawi looks on course to be Europe's leading sire. An Irish Two Thousand Guineas (Ire-I) winner from Dubai Millennium's single crop of 56 foals, Dubawi has had a banner year that has seen his earnings reach more than £5,000,000 ($7,675,000) with 17 stakes winners. Dubawi's six European group I winners include the Prix du Jockey-Club (Fr-I) winner New Bay; King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes (Eng-I) winner Postponed; and Arabian Queen, who bettered Golden Horn in the Juddmonte International Stakes (Eng-I).

Dubawi has further demonstrated his affinity for Mr. Prospector- and Sadler's Wells-line mares in 2015. New Bay and Postponed join Oakleigh Plate (Aus-I) winner Shamal Wind and Dubai World Cup

Darley stallion Dubawi on pace to lead sire standings

(UAE-I) winner Prince Bishop in being out of Mr. Prospector-line mares. Both Arabian Queen and Jebel Hatta Stakes (UAE-I) winner Hunter's Light are out of Barathea daughters while Lockinge Stakes (Eng-I) victor Night of Thunder is out of a Galileo mare. BH

RACING COMMENTARY

with Bob Barry

THE UNDISPUTED TRUTH

The list of men and women who became notable, or even famous, because of horses they have owned is at least as long as your arm—and perhaps as long as Whirlaway's tail.

This intends no disrespect toward the Harry Meyerhoffs, the Mickey and Karen Taylors, and the Penny Tweedys of this world. Nor is it meant as extra credit to the Spectacular Bids, the Seattle Slews, and the Secretariats. It is merely an observation.

The day after Ahmed Zayat leaves this mortal coil, you can bet that American Pharoah will be in the first line of his owner's obituary. The reverse, however, does not hold. Any horse's accomplishments are its own and are neither polished nor sullied by way of association with the one who pays the bills.

These observations are noted here largely on account of my guilty feelings. Up until Sunday of last week, I remained firm in my opinion American Pharoah would not run in the Travers. This belief was officially dashed when the Triple Crown winner was led into the Saratoga starting gate.

For weeks I had been incapable of believing Zayat's stated intent to run American Pharoah at the "Graveyard of Champions." By handicapping the previous race, rather than the next one, I fell into a trap that catches many horseplayers.

I figured Bob Baffert would not want to run Pharoah less than four weeks after running him in the Haskell. I also could not help but think about all of those newspaper stories, about all those times Zayat and the truth seemed like strangers waiting to be introduced. These factors combined to make me think that Zayat's talk about the Travers was just that: talk.

But that checkered past was from a time when Zayat was merely a Thoroughbred owner of some note, not the high-profile guardian of a Triple Crown winner. Sunlight is a great disinfectant. In addition to millions of dollars, American Pharoah has also brought Ahmed Zayat plenty of sunlight.

In the Louisville Courier-Journal last week, Jennie Rees reminded us that Zayat was a bettor and a fan before he was a big-time owner. How could he bring Pharoah to race in the Pennsylvania Derby, Zayat asked Rees rhetorically, when Parx has a 30% takeout on exotic bets?

Zayat had not merely been speaking the truth. He was also thinking like a racing fan, and a bettor. When Zayat told NBC on Saturday that he was thinking only of Pharoah's fans and the horse's legacy, I finally believed him. American Pharoah ran a gutsy race, and his owner can hold his head high. Except for thinking like a fan, Ahmed Zayat has nothing to be ashamed of. BH
